

In New Zealand they have special hitch-hiking signs next to bus stops where people wanting lifts can stand until someone picks them up, or a bus comes along & they choose to get on that instead. This feels like such a lovely thing. I don't know why we don't have the same thing here.

